

Hello, dear HR Manager!

My name is Artyom Skrebets, I am 25 years old.

While studying at the 5th year of university, I realized that I did not want to work in my specialty. I decided to try myself in the banking sector. Working in a bank has improved my communication skills, increased my financial literacy, and shown me how a bank works from the inside out.

My introduction to programming began with a competition for free Javascript training. I didn't manage to win, but intense competition and tight deadlines forced me to dive into programming with my head. This project showed what I really want to do. After that, I continued to study HTML, CSS, JS, algorithms, React/Redux, MongoDB, MySQL, Node Js, Express on my own. In the fall, I took courses in the company itransition, in the direction of React/Redux.

Example of a React/Redis, MongoDB, Node Js, Express project that was deployed to Heroku: <https://fanficforumweb.herokuapp.com/>
Link to github with the project: <https://github.com/sataller/course>

Working in a bank and independent training have developed my ability to organize myself, but I do not have enough experience working on a real project for further development. This will help me understand how the industry works from the inside and gain knowledge from professionals. Please consider my candidacy for the position of an intern in your company.

Sincerely, Skrebets Artyom!
